

Organic fertilizers Market is estimated to be US$ 21.91 billion by 2030 with a CAGR of 11.8% during the forecast period

Organic fertilizers Market accounted for US$ 7.24 billion in 2020 and is estimated to be US$ 21.91 billion by 2030 and is anticipated to register a CAGR of 11.8%. Organic fertilizers are carbon-based fertilizers that are spontaneously created. Fertilizers are substances that can be applied to soil or plants to supply nutrients and encourage development. Organic fertilizers, as opposed to synthetic fertilizers, are made from vegetable matter, animal dung, human manure, and animal matter, and are thought to be more sustainable, perishable, and environmentally friendly. Organic fertilizers enhance the soil and assist insects in addition to being a plant fertilizer. Because many fertilizers find their way into human diet, using organic fertilizers lowers the risk of diseases in humans.

The report " Global Organic Fertilizers Market, By Source (Plants, Animals and Minerals), By Crop Type (Cereals & Grains, Oilseeds & Pulses, Fruits & Vegetables, and Others), By Form (Dry or Liquid Form), By Application (Soil Treatment and Seed Treatment) and By Region (North America, Europe, Asia Pacific, Latin America, and Middle East & Africa) - Trends, Analysis and Forecast till 2029"

Key Highlights:

- In October 2021, Khetiwalo recently introduced a wide assortment of organic fertilisers at a fraction of the cost of chemical fertilisers. Dhar Shakti 50kg is a complete substitute for DAP (Di-Ammonium Phosphate) fertiliser.

Analyst View:

The global organic fertilizers market is growing due to an increase in the use of organic fertilizers, which has environmental benefits and enhances soil fertility. Furthermore, the worldwide organic fertilizers market may benefit from manufacturers' continued focus on developing creative and novel products using advanced production processes. Furthermore, government and environmental policies aimed at reducing waste, reducing the use of non-biodegradable raw materials, and encouraging the use of organic fertilizers are some of the factors propelling the worldwide organic fertilizers market forward over the forecast period. The expansion of the global organic fertilisers industry is hampered by weather conditions and a lower nutritional ratio than chemical fertilisers.
